Top five publications in the last five years

Applicants are asked to list their top five publications in the last five years and reasons why these publications have been selected.

Overall track record in the last five years

Applicants are encouraged to use this section to identify aspects of their track record that are in addition to their top five publications. This includes any relative to opportunity considerations they wish the peer reviewers to take into consideration.

The following areas may be considered:

- Career summary – including qualifications, employment and appointment history
- Contribution to field of research – this may include the impact of previous research including translation of research into health outcomes
- Collaborations
- Community engagement and participation
- Professional involvement – including committees, conference organisation, conference participation
- International standing – including invitations to speak, international committees
- Supervision and mentoring
- Peer review involvement (including NHMRC, other granting organisations, manuscripts, editorial responsibilities)
- Other contributions to NHMRC
- Any other information the applicant thinks is vital to the application.
